

FALL DANCE CLASSES

Due to the Coronavirus, we are all trying to find our new normal. We have had to re-think our studio practices and how things will work to keep your dancers safe while still getting to do what they enjoy. Listed below are our plans for Fall 2020 classes:

1. Because of safety measures (see New Studio Procedures) and the “new normal” for right now, we will be staggering our classes so we are able to keep everyone safe.
2. As our class sizes may be limited to 10 or less, we will not be able to offer some of the classes that we have in the past. For PreDance, Beginners and Combo 1 and 2, we offer two classes per week, provided we have enough interest. Classes will be limited to 10 dancers. If classes max out, or are offered at only one time, classes may be split into two groups (see #3 for process). We don't anticipate this happening but if it does, our plan is in place.
3. For classes that exceed the maximum limit, we may split the class into two groups. For example, if Lyrical class has 15 dancers, we would split them into an A and B Group. Group A would be in the studio one week while Group B would follow along from home on Zoom at the same time. The next week they would switch. We are still working on the details but feel this would be a great plan so everyone can be in the studio in small classes while the others are learning right along with them.
4. We may or may not be starting the year with Acro. We need to work out a few more details as far as safety measures and mats.
5. Musical Theatre will not be offered as a separate class at this time, but we are aware that the dancers love it and will incorporate some of it into the other classes.

These are some of the changes we are making to start classes in the fall. If for some reason we are unable to have classes in the studio when we start in September, we would start on Zoom and return to the studio when we are able. This, of course, is Plan B.

We do appreciate your understanding during this time of uncertainty. Please make sure your dancer understands, as well.
